Help Improve Transition Services for Students with Disabilities

The Alabama Parent Education Center (APEC) is seeking parents of students with disabilities (ages 14 to 21) who have IEPS to participate in a multi-year research focus group. The focus group will seek information from the parents regarding the special education and transition services provided to their children. Information gathered from the focus groups will be used to identify future parent training programs. This research project is being done in collaboration with the Alabama State Department of Education and Auburn University. For more information, click here.

HAVE PRESENTATION. WILL TRAVEL

Are you a member of a group that needs a speaker for an upcoming meeting? If so, ADAP can fill this need. ADAP staff provides education/training sessions on a wide variety of disability-related topics including, but not limited to: the Americans with Disabilities Act, Medicaid waivers, guardianships, special education, general disability rights, and transition services for youth who will soon become adults. We will also speak on specifically requested, disability-related topics. If you are interested in making arrangements for ADAP to come speak at one of your meetings, please contact Anita Davidson, one of ADAP's Legal Assistants, by calling 205-348-5107, or emailing her, akdavidson@adap.ua.edu
